

Chief Executive Officer Brian Fowler

As founder and chief executive officer of Revolution Partners, Fowler applies personal dedication and professional expertise to his vision for a new standard in wealth management. He is committed to offering advisors and clients a principled approach and a cutting-edge, integrated platform, and works personally with clients to develop and execute wealth management plans.

Previously, Brian served as chief strategy officer at Cannon Financial Institute. With Cannon, his primary focus was consulting with clients to maximize their return on educational and business initiatives.

Until mid-2013, Brian served as senior vice president of Raymond James where he directed the firm's Education and Practice Management department. In this role, he led the Morgan Keegan conversion training project, integrating approximately 1,500 branch associates.

From 2005 to 2012, Brian served as director of Morgan Keegan's Wealth Management Services (WMS) division and president of Morgan Keegan's Investment Adviser, where he was responsible for the management and marketing of that firm's advisory programs and services. Brian led over 130 employees who provided private client support in areas such as practice management, financial advisor development, investment due diligence and marketing, financial planning, retirement services, insurance and performance reporting.

Brian began his career in the industry at Morgan Keegan as a successful financial advisor in Nashville, Tennessee. He also served on Morgan Keegan's Retail Advisory Council and was assistant branch manager of the Nashville office. Prior to becoming the director of WMS, he served as the director of Business Development and Training. Brian was the campaign manager for former United States Congressman John Tanner before joining Morgan Keegan.

Brian earned his bachelor's degree in Organizational Communications and Finance from Murray State University. He was also a Rotary Scholar, attending the University of Strathclyde in Glasgow, Scotland. Brian has completed the Securities Industry Institute® sponsored by SIMFA and the Wharton School.

Brian is a member of the St. Mary's Episcopal School Board of Trustees and serves on the Strategic and Sustainability Task Force, the Finance and Facilities Committee and the Investment Committee. The Fowlers are foundational members of Miles for Miles, an initiative which raises funding for Best Buddies and other non-profit organizations that enhance the lives of children with intellectual disabilities. He and his wife Ali have three children. Brian enjoys gardening, cooking, golf, boating and spending time with friends and family on Kentucky Lake.
